PUSHED HER TO OLD KENTUCKY

Rumor that Young Girl's Body was Found Discloses
Romantic Elopement

LAST OF THE MCFEELEYS

Went out of Rushville on a
Bundle of Skirts and a Mason
Jar of Baked Beans

It was rumored that the dead body of a girl had been found under the floor of the home occupied by William Hoard in West Fourth street near Harrison street. It was said that the family which only recently occupied the house detected a peculiar stench within the last few days and last night, after making a search of the house were horrified to find the decomposed form of a girl apparently sixteen or seventeen years of age. It was said to be the body of Miss Nellie McFeeley, who figured prominently in the limelight last fall when her father, at the point of a gun, declared he would shoot Lon Cochrel, her first cousin, if he insisted on coming to the house. The father never shot of course and Cochrel married the girl. Some of her friends declared she disappeared rather mysteriously and on hearing the story today of the body being found, were wont to believe it.

The officers were notified of the alleged horrible find and were ready to buy sponges to the about their noses while they made an investigation when the story was proven to be a "grapevine."

A representative of this paper called at the Hoard home early this morning and reverently took off his hat as he walked into the place fully expecting to find a corpse stretched out on a cooling board and hear a harrowing tale of the startling find by members of the family. Instead a happy faced girl answered the door and several members of the family were seated about a fire cheerily chatting. They had heard the "dreadful story" but were unable to account for it being circulated.

A young lady at the house says that Nellie McFeeley did not mysteriously disappear but left Rushville in a romantic manner several months ago in company with her lover-cousin, Lon Cochrel going to Kentucky where they were married. When the father made it next to impossible for the lovers to meet and see each other they hit upon a plan to leave. Neither had any money and as it was impossible for him to marry in this State they determined to leave penniless. Cochrel secured an old push cart and in the middle of the night the couple left here going south on the Milroy pike for Kentucky. In the bed of the cart was the wearing apparel which the girl had secretly stolen away from her home and enough cooked food which they secured from friends to last them several days. A few friends saw them off at the race bridge on South Main street and wished them a bon voyage to Kentucky and on the matrimonial sea. The girl was seated upon a pack of old skirts and a Mason jar of beans aboard the cart. She has visited here since and says they are living happily in old Kentucky.

COLD WEATHER NEEDED TO KILL OFF GRIP MICROBES

Severely cold weather is believed to be the only solution for the health conditions of Rushville. It is believed that a hard freeze will kill the grip germs and assist very materially in the eradication of communicable diseases.

THE WEATHER

Increasing cloudiness tonight, probably followed by snow in south portion Friday. Slowly rising temperature.

MEN'S BIG MEETING BEST IN THE SERIES

Will be Held Next Sunday Afternoon at Main Street Christian Church

One of the largest and best meetings of the series of the Men's Big Meetings will be held on next Sunday afternoon at the Main Street Christian church, at 2:30 o'clock.

The committee on program have secured the services of Judge McKenzie Cleland, judge of the juvenile courts of Chicago, to deliver the address. His subject will be "Crime and the Courts," and suffice it to say it will be intensely interesting and instructive. Judge Cleland is a lawyer and lecturer of national reputation. This fact together with the position he holds insures an address which will be worth while.

The Wi-Hub quartette, of which Congressman Watson is a member, will sing; also the men's big chorus will render some excellent songs, accompanied by the combination orchestra, which is one of the best in the State.

This will be by far the strongest and best meeting of the series and should be attended by every man in this city and county. Every man is welcome. No admission is charged.

LOCAL MAN PAYS TOP PRICE AT SALE

A goodly number of hog buyers from over this State and several surrounding States were present at the big sale given by Shelton & Lowe, of Manilla, at Shelbyville, yesterday afternoon. The stock sold rapidly and at fancy prices, one of the porkers bringing $280. This hog was purchased by John Stark, of this city.

CREWS NOW RUN INTO THE TERMINAL

I. & C. Line has Made Arrangements to Use City Cars—
Will Handle Baggage

Beginning today, the I. & C. traction cars were run into the city of Indianapolis, and local agents along the line are selling tickets direct to the traction terminal. This is made possible by the I. & C. leasing the city cars. Baggage will be checked also, and when the interurban cars reach the suburbs, passengers and baggage will be transferred to the city cars and the same crews will continue into the terminal station.

NEEDY MEN ARE BEING HELPED

Street Commissioner Greenlee has Struck upon Happy
Idea to Relieve Want

EMPLOYED BY THE CITY

The Officials and Public are Complimenting Mr. Greenlee for his Philanthropic Movement

Believing that men who are asking charity in this city are doing so because of the fact that they are really out of employment and would, work if the opportunity presented itself, Street Commissioner T. M. Greenlee has hit upon an idea which he is carrying out with success and to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Mr. Greenlee has wisely figured that men must live, even if they must be fed by the taxpayers, through the trustee. This is expensive. And realizing this fact, he has planned to give them work in order that their labor may compensate for what they consume and at the same time saving them from the embarrassment of asking for aid and in this way helping the city also.

Commissioner Greenlee is not creating any new positions or adding any more burden to the city for labor, but is selecting men of this class who actually need help, to do the work, which must of necessity be done.

In most cases he has found the needy men willing to work in order to feed their families rather than ask charity from the public.

The city officials and public in general are complimenting Mr. Greenlee on his philanthropic action in thus relieving the wants of the worthy needy of this city.

MANY RUSH COUNTY HORSES WILL BE SOLD IN BY SALE

John S. Lackey's entries for his March sale close Saturday night. From the number already consigned, it is evident that the results of the sale will be as good as recent years at least. The quality of the stock is first class. Quite a few Rush county horses are entered in the Cambridge City sale.

RETURNED FROM THE BLACK HILLS

R. F. Conover Has Made a
Good Strike in the Gold Fields

BUYS MORE MACHINERY

Which will be Installed in the Spring—Now Working Twenty-five Miners

R. F. Conover, formerly, of this city, returned last night from a year's stay in the gold mines of the Black Hills of North Dakota. He was accompanied by his wife, son and niece, Miss Mary Campbell, who have been roughing it for over a year in the Northwest.

Mr. Conover returns to buy additional machinery which will be installed in the mines in the spring. He is one of the largest stockholders in the company and is superintending the work there. This afternoon he left for Indianapolis to consult George VanCamp, one of the heavy holders of stock. Others interested in the company are the Anhauser-Busch Co., of St. Louis.

Mr. Conover says he never had better prospects in his life for the project gives evidence of becoming a big paying affair. At present, he has twenty-five miners employed. Alex Conover, his son, who drove a laundry wagon here for many years, is in charge of the work during his father's absence. Arnold Spencer, son-in-law of Dr. Tevis, of this city, is another big stock holder in the concern, having spent twelve months with Mr. Conover in the Black Hills when he first went there to prospect.

LOCAL HOG BUYERS LOOK FOR A RECOVERY

Local stock buyers and shippers declare there is little likelihood of a decrease in the marketing of hogs for some time, as the majority of the raisers seem convinced that there is little prospect for better prices. However, many of the shippers believe the recovery of better values will be realized by the middle of February.

MAYOR OF SHELBYVILLE WIELDS THE BIG STICK

Mayor Swain, of Shelbyville, still adheres to his belief that the best punishment for "wayward boys" is a sound whipping. One guilty of throwing stones was treated to a lusty thrashing by his father in the Mayor's presence this week.

The remains of Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Waide, who died at the home of her parents in Indianapolis, Tuesday night, were brought to this city today and interred in East Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Albert Kirkham, of Center township, who underwent an operation at an Indianapolis hospital, several weeks ago, was able to be brought home Sunday and now is able to sit up.

ARE SUSPICIOUS OF LATEST MOVE

Farmers are Receiving a
"Dainty" Request from
Miss Mary Stubbs

INFORMATION IS WANTED

State Statistician Desires to Learn Just how Much Each Man Possesses

Indiana farmers are getting suspicious of circulars that are being sent out from the capital by the State statistician which pretends to want to get a line on the wealth of the State to be used for statistical purposes.

And it is well that they should. As conditions now are, the man with "visible" property is paying the greater burden of taxes. He, with a farm, large or small, and with pigs, poultry, cows, calves, horses old or young, corn in the crib and wheat in the barn, meat in the barrel or any where else on the first day of March each year must pay on it. And the law requires that the farmer must list every farm implement, harness and rig. He must tell the assessor how many plows, bees and cords of wood he has. And his wife must tell the number of pounds of butter, dozen of eggs and gallons of milk she has made during the year. If a patch of potatoes has been planted, the farmer must tell how big it was and how many potatoes were grown in it.

He must list with the assessor the number of acres of corn, wheat, oats, rye, meadow, peas, beans, apples and gallons of sorghum and maple syrup and sugar made during the year. In fact, nothing, not even the dog, is permitted to get away from the farmer when it comes to paying taxes.

This same rule applies to the small farmers and to the teamsters, the drayman and all others whose property is visible. They cannot hide it from the tax collector.

ANNA COTTON DIED HERE LAST NIGHT

Deceased was a Sufferer of Complication of Diseases—Remains
Removed to Manilla

Miss Anna Cotton, of near Manilla, daughter of the late Thomas Cotton, died at the sanitarium here Wednesday evening. Miss Cotton was a sufferer of a complication of diseases and only a few weeks ago was removed from her home to this city. The announcement of her death was a shock to her many friends throughout Shelby and Rush counties.

Miss Cotton was a sister of Frank Cotton, a prominent stock dealer. For many months with her mother she has resided at the home of Mr. Cotton. Weeks ago she suffered abdominal troubles which assumed various forms of disease.

Stewart & Fix, undertakers of Shelbyville, came today and took charge of the remains which were removed from this city to the home of Frank Cotton, near Manilla today.

TWO GROUND HOG DAYS

According to those misled by unreliable information and false tradition, next Sunday, Feb. 24, is Groundhog Day, but the best authority on the subject (the Ananias Club) puts the important event on Ash Wednesday, which this year falls on March 4th.

Ash Wednesday falls a little late this year, but in view of the open winter thus far there is plenty of time after that date for a good dose of winter, should Mr. Groundhog see his shadow.

South Bend Souphouse Held to Have Had a Crafty Inception.

HUNGARIANS COMPLAIN

Alleged Beneficiaries of Reputed Benevolent Movement Say They Will Not Stand For It.

Mayor Fogarty's Administration Accused of Working a Bold Political Scheme.

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 30.—After running two weeks, Mayor E. J. Fogarty's souphouse for feeding hungry unemployed foreigners was closed by the mayor because of action taken by a body of Hungarians, declaring the move a pet scheme of the administration for political purposes. During the short time the souphouse was operated 2,000 free meals were served, at an average cost of 11 cents a meal. The various church and benevolent societies are making arrangements to take care of the needy until such time as the factories resume active operations.

SITUATION NOT CHANGED

Operators and Miners Not Likely to Get Together.

Indianapolis, Jan. 30.—The soft coal operators delegated by the operators of western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois met the miners' committee in Indianapolis today to take steps to re-establish joint conference relations. The meetings will be held in the palmroom of the Claypool hotel and behind closed doors.

The situation has not changed and the indications are that no call will be issued for a joint wage conference at this meeting. There are also strong indications that when one is called it will be to meet in Detroit, if it is decided not to meet in Indianapolis.

Overstocked coal markets, in which the operators are also retailers, will cause some of the operators to maneuver for stimulation in the markets, which would be caused by the prospects of a strike April 1, when the present agreement expires. The Illinois operators are so at loggerheads with themselves and their miners as to be an obstacle in the way of progress toward the issuance of a call for a joint conference.

The Illinois operators' demand, that there be readjustment and equalization of the differential between machine and pick mining in the four states, will also block the way. They complain that the western Pennsylvania and Ohio operators have an advantage of 8 cents a ton over them on machine-mined coal and that the Indiana operators have an advantage of 3 cents.

Four Held on Murder Charge.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Jan. 30.—Four men are imprisoned in the county jail, accused by the police of the murder of Columbus Croy, marshal of Woodburn, on the 7th of last June. They are Herman Miller, who preceded Croy as marshal of Woodburn; Fred A. LaDuke of Cadillac, Mich., bartender at Woodburn at the time of the killing; John Baker, Paulding, O., and John Stout, ditcher, of Woodburn. The testimony against the accused men has been gathered by Sheriff Grice, Prosecutor Thomas and Police Chief Ankenbruck of this city, and Dr. Don C. Gorrel of Paulding, O. They will not say who fired the fatal shot, but they insist that the chain of evidence is strong.

Loss Will Aggregate a Million.

Indianapolis, Jan. 30.—By the time the fire in the great Coburn storage plant had burned out it was estimated that property loss to the amount of $1,000,000 had been sustained, on which there is an aggregate insurance of $600,000. In the warehouse were 140 voting machines belonging to Marion county. They had been kept there, with the exception of election times, since their purchase almost two years ago. There was no insurance on the machines, which cost, all told, $98,000.

Druggists Indicted.

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 30.—The grand jury has surprised the citizens of Stinesville by returning forty-three indictments against the two druggists of that place. Three months ago a remonstrance closed the saloons at Stinesville, and it is alleged that former patrons have been supplied with intoxicants on alleged prescriptions filled by the druggists. This led to an investigation, on suggestion by the temperance people.

The Deadly Kerosene.

Crawfordsville, Ind., Jan. 30.—As a result of the explosion of a can of coal oil with which she was attempting to start a fire in the kitchen stove, Mrs. Chris Fry, forty years old, was so seriously burned she died a few hours later. Her husband is suffering from painful injuries received while attempting to extinguish the flames that enveloped his wife.

A decline in the price of wheat at Liverpool depressed wheat on the Chicago market.

Rev. G. B. Wall's Report of the Glenwood Charge

The following is the pastor's report to the Second Quarterly Conference, of the Glenwood Charge, Connersville District Indiana Annual Conference, convened at Glenwood, January 25th, 1908:

Appointed by the presiding elder to the pastorate of this charge for the remainder of the conference year, arrived in Glenwood December 11, 1907. We were well received and kindly cared for in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Dent until after our household goods arrived and we were comfortably at home in the house retained for our use. You are aware that we have the interest of four congregations to look after which cannot possibly receive the attention of the pastor necessary for the very best development; but with reliance upon the Father we have done what we think to be the very best up to this time.

I have preached at each of the churches more than once, and have had no discouraging conditions to face. The membership at all the places are gallantly girding for the service of the Master.

In a ten days' meeting at Orange the membership was quickened and effective visions of the Christ were experienced which will lead in the production of much fruit in the kingdom of our Lord.

The conditions of church life are very encouraging and the men and women are loyal to the church's best interest; can be depended upon to unite with the pastor in the great effort to advance the cause of the kingdom.

Good congregations are in evidence at every preaching service. The people seem anxious to hear the gospel of Christ.

We are now in a revival service here at Glenwood. Most of the resident membership are greatly interested and cheerfully lend their support. No more on the part of the world is yet visible, but the seed is sown in the name of Christ, who says His word shall not return unto Him void.

I have preached thirty-one times; have been in prayer meeting and Sunday school as often as opportunity afforded; have conducted two funerals and assisted in one.

One member has died, Bro. Fred Wardell, of the Glenwood class. He died in the faith.

No one has seen fit to marry. It there have been any marriages, some other person has officiated.

One has removed her membership. Jennie Martin, of Columbia Class. She united with our church in Connersville.

We have had one addition by letter, Sister Cloud of the Andersonville U. B. church. She became a member of the class at New Salem.

I have been unable to call at the homes of our people as I should like to; but hope to be able to be in every Methodist home in the charge by the close of the year.

I have made about twenty-five pastoral calls.

No benevolent collections has been taken.

Dear Brothers and Sisters: I want to express my appreciation of your interest in our welfare and I think my Heavenly Father that my lot has been cast among you. Though the roads may be rough and the winter bleak, chilly, I count it nothing to endure if I can be instrumental in His hands, of bringing souls into a more perfect relation with Him.

The health of my wife is improving. The pure fresh air of this beautiful country will be beneficial to her. We all rejoice in the love of our Father who doeth all things well.

I submit this my first quarterly report in the name of Jesus Christ.

G. B. WALLS, Pastor.

Architect Huston Went to Europe Leaving Open Certificates Behind.

FILLED IN BY A BROTHER

Rev. Samuel C. Huston Gives Some Significant Testimony In Pennsylvania Capitol Fraud Case.

That Huston Intends to Look Out For Number One Is Now Made Apparent.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 30.—That Architect Joseph M. Huston means to take care of himself at the expense of his four co-defendants in the conspiracy cases now on trial in the Dauphin county court, is apparent from the testimony of his brother, the Rev. Samuel C. Huston of Philadelphia, a retired Presbyterian clergyman, who was called as a witness for the commonwealth.

Stanford B. Lewis, the architect's assistant, while the capitol was being constructed and furnished, and who is under indictment on two charges of conspiracy to cheat and defraud the state in the payment of bills aggregating $92,704.80 for capitol furnishings, was also a witness for the commonwealth.

Rev. Mr. Huston testified that when his brother went to Europe in the spring of 1906 on business for the state he left with him signed blank architect's certificates and a power of attorney. Soon after the architect's departure Contractor John H. Sanderson, one of the defendants, appeared with a bill supported by an affidavit purporting to be in proper form, for which he asked and obtained certification of the architect by the brother's signature.

The commonwealth expects to prove that this bill was fraudulent in that Sanderson was given the contract for certain furnishings under one item in the special capitol furnishings schedule and billed these articles to the state under another item, the amount of which is in excess of the item under which he was given the contract, and also that some of these articles were invoiced to the state and paid for as containing three times as many feet as they actually contained.

Following the testimony of Rev. Mr. Huston and that of Lewis to the effect that the architect was expected to certify only to the quality and not to the quantity of furnishings, the commonwealth has brought into court and exhibited to the jury two of the sofas, a table and two clothes-trees supplied by Sanderson for the capitol under the "per foot" system. One of the sofas was measured for the information of the jury and was shown to be six feet long. Sanderson billed this sofa to the state at eighteen feet and was paid for at the rate of $18.40 "per foot." The other sofa measured six feet and was billed and paid for as containing 19½ feet. The table had been billed under item 22 in the schedule at $18.40 "per foot" instead of under item 24 at $10.40, as called for by Sanderson's contract. The clothes-tree was billed as containing 1½ feet at $18.40, and should have been furnished, the commonwealth claims, for $5.55.

Ephraim Oswald, carpenter for the board of grounds and buildings, by whom all the furniture for the capitol was received and distributed according to tag on each article, was called to identify a table and other articles offered in evidence.

Former Governor Samuel W. Pennypacker, who was president of the board of grounds and buildings while the capitol was being furnished, is here to testify for the defense and will probably be called tomorrow. Pennypacker's colleagues on the board were ex-Auditor General William P. Snyder and ex-State Treasurer William L. Mathues, defendant in the case now on trial.

James M. Shumaker, former superintendent of grounds and buildings, also a defendant, was the executive officer of the board during the time Pennypacker was president.

Named Them Out.

Boyerstown, Pa., Jan. 30.—The jury which has been investigating the disastrous fire at the Rhoades opera house, in which 169 persons lost their lives, returned a verdict this morning which is in part as follows: "We are of the opinion that Mrs. Monroe and the deputy factory inspector are largely responsible for the disaster, on account of negligence. We request the prosecuting attorney of Berks county to arrest and if possible convict Mrs. Monroe, owner of the stereopticon machine, and Harry McC. Bechtel, the deputy factory inspector, on the charge of criminal negligence."

Long Contest Ended.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 30.—The Illinois house of representatives yesterday afternoon, by a vote of 88 yeas to 33 nays, passed the amended Oglesby primary election measure. The bill now goes to Governor Deneen for his signature. This ends a long contest for the passage of a direct plurality primary election measure.

Solomon Shank.

Solomon Shank, son of William and Elizabeth Shank, was born June 15, 1840, and died January 22, 1903, aged 67 years, 7 months, and 7 days.

He was born in Green county, Ohio, but at an early age removed with his parents to a farm near the Ben Davis creek church in Rush county, where most of his life was spent.

He united with the Christian Church of Ben Davis creek, under the ministry of Knowles Shaw. While not with ostentation or outward show, his best thoughts were always for the interest of his church.

For a year his life was given unselfishly to the care of his invalid father and mother and his devotion to them was remarkably tender.

Since the death of his parents he had lived at the old homestead, spending the last fourteen years alone with the exception of the last five months, during his last illness when he was removed to the home of his niece, Mrs. George Hinchman and husband, whose tender ministrations filled his days with peace and comfort.

Although a sufferer for many years, he was patient, never complaining, and even in the last few hours on earth expressed the desire that he might be restored to health, yet resigned to the will of God.

While living alone, he did not live the life of a recluse, but rather cultivated sociability and a love for his fellow-man.

His life needs no eulogy. We, his friends and neighbors, bear witness to the unselfish simple, God-fearing life he lived.

He leaves one brother, Michael Shank, of this county, one sister, Mrs. Anna Stone, of Illinois, who with their families survive him.

Funeral services were held at the home of his niece, Friday afternoon, Jan. 24th, 1903, by Rev. Mullendore, of Frankfort, Ind., and burial at the Ben Davis creek cemetery.

Neighborhood Favorite.

Mrs. E. D. Charles, of Harbor, Maine, speaking of Electric Bitters, says: "It is a neighborhood favorite here with us." It deserves to be a favorite everywhere. It gives quick relief in dyspepsia, liver complaint, kidney derangement, malnutrition, nervousness, weakness and general debility. Its action on the blood, as a thorough purifier makes it especially useful as a spring medicine. This grand alternative tonic is sold under guarantee at F. B. Johnson's & Co. drug store, 50c.

Bridges First, Then Canal Excavation.

A novelty in engineering construction will be a feature of the digging of the Evanston channel of the Chicago drainage canal system, says Popular Mechanics for January. The bridges which will span the canal will be made of concrete and placed in position on heavy concrete foundations ready to use before the ground is excavated. Engineers have informed the drainage board that the erection of the bridges before the trench is dug will prove not only possible, but more economical than otherwise.

GAME BIRD PROJECT.

Professor C. F. Hodge's Plan to Raise

Wild Turkeys For Massachusetts.

Wild turkeys for Massachusetts forests is the latest project of Professor Charles F. Hodge of Clark university, at Worcester, Mass., and he has the figures brought out to the enthusiastic limit, says the Worcester Telegram. With a start of a dozen pairs of the wild birds of the south he would have Massachusetts woods occupied by 3,244,911,744 beautiful wild turkeys in ten years, allowing for a few accidental shots and some misfortunes. The project is worth trying if the hunters can control their desire to get a few hundred thousand of the millions before they grow up. The wild turkey makes the best sport that hunters know on the wing after it is well understood and considering the value of the food when the game is cooked.

The wild turkey is a lordly bird when he has a reasonable chance for life, and he is at the same time so foolish that he can be caught easily. The Mongolian pheasant is said to be a failure in Massachusetts woods, and it is very unpopular with people who have regard for other birds. The pheasant is a robber and destroyer without gain to itself. The wild turkey has a good reputation in the south and is winning new popularity. The professor says it would cost only $60 for a dozen pairs, and they would make a reputation for Massachusetts by raising something like ten birds a year to each couple.

A burglar who entered the home of Mrs. Mary McDade in Pittsburg the other morning had gathered together silverware and jewelry and was about to depart when he saw a photograph of Miss Margaret McDade, the eighteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. McDade, says a Pittsburg special dispatch to the New York Times. The picture showed Miss McDade in a bathing costume. It appealed to him more than did the gold, so he took the picture and left everything else behind. He also left a note, in which he said:

Dear Miss—I had intended to carry off all this junk that I have gathered together until I discovered this picture. What is more gold compared with such a face and such a figure? Keep your gold. I want none of it. But I must keep this picture, and it will be more to me than all the gold in the universe.

Mrs. McDade turned the note over to the police, but they are not making a great effort to locate the burglar.

CEMETERY FOR DOGS.

Massachusetts Woman to Establish Institution Like One in Paris.

Having received encouragement from prominent persons in various sections of the United States, Mrs. G. H. Shapley announces, according to a special dispatch from Newton, Mass., to the New York Herald, that she will establish at Newtonville, Mass., a cemetery for dogs. Mrs. Shapley is widely known as the owner of Pinkie, the smallest dog in the world, which died some time ago. Ever since Mrs. Shapley started the idea of a burying ground for dogs many prominent persons have assured her of their help.

"I have quite a private burying ground of my own," said Mrs. Shapley. "Six of my dogs are buried in a vacant lot behind my house. This lot has some of the features of the Paris burying ground that so interested me. It slopes down to a small lake and could easily be made just like the famous dog cemetery in Paris."

RUSHVILLE, INDIANA, JANUARY 29, 1908

INDIANA POLITICS

BY ROBERT G. TUCKER

Indianapolis, Jan. 29.—Congressman Edgar Dean Crumpacker of Valparaiso has withdrawn as a candidate for delegate to the Republican national convention from the Tenth district in behalf of George Ade, the humorist and author, and the latter will be elected next Tuesday unless he declines the honor. Some time ago Ade admitted that he would be pleased to be elected as one of the delegates from the Tenth, but within a few days he announced that he would not be a candidate, as the political game would interfere with his literary pursuits. It is said now, however, that he learned that Congressman Crumpacker wanted to become a delegate and that he withdrew rather than enter a fight, as Senator Will R. Wood of Lafayette was a candidate. It has been the understanding that Congressman Crumpacker would be elected, but today it was reported that he has notified his lieutenants that Ade is to have the honor. Ade has not taken a part in politics, but his father and brother at Kentland have been active in local and state politics for years. Throughout the district party workers desired the election of Ade as a mark of their esteem.

That the Democratic leaders have determined to meet the Republicans on any temperance issue they may inject into their platform for the coming campaign, is becoming more apparent, and declarations to that effect are expected from them within the next few weeks. No attempt has been made to outline a program for the Democracy, but two candidates for governor have declared for reform and the others are known to hold similar views. Samuel M. Ralston has come out openly for a local option law. Carroll K. McCullough says he stands for reform and strict law enforcement. The Rev. Thomas Kuhn has been regarded as the temperance Democratic candidate from the start. Senator L. Ert Slack has been referred to generally as the favorite of the Democratic portion of the Anti-Saloon League. Thomas R. Marshall is said to hold views similar to the other candidates.

It was learned today that there may be a contest in the Sixth district over the election of delegates to the Chicago convention, as Charles S. Hernly of Newcastle, ex-chairman of the Republican state committee, may become a candidate for delegate. It has been the understanding for a week or more that Rudolph Leeds of Richmond and Charles Campbell of Shelbyville would be elected, but if Hernly enters the race there will be a contest. The enthusiasm of some of the prospective candidates for delegate has been dampened somewhat by the report that they will have to stand an assessment of $750 each for maintaining the headquarters and the dignity of the delegation during the convention.

Chairman Jackson and several members of the Democratic state committee arrived last night for the meeting today at the Grand hotel. They indicated that there is a movement to issue a call for an early state convention—possibly earlier than April 1 and 2, when the Republicans will nominate their ticket. There is a desire among the Democratic leaders to take the initiative in hopes of placing the Republicans on the defensive throughout the campaign, but it is not believed that the convention will be held earlier than the middle of May, as some of the candidates are opposed to an earlier date.

The directors of the Commercial club adopted a resolution proposed by Wire to President Roosevelt.

If the ship of state needs caking
Or the lion's tail a twist,
If the senators are balking,
If a silver spoon is missed,
If the pugna strikes Honolulu,
If there's trouble in the cup—
Why, just write to Mr. Roosevelt,
And he'll fix the matter up.

If they lunch a coon in Texas,
If the green bug's in the wheat,
If there's anything to vex us,
If you're troubled with cold feet,
If your dinner isn't ready,
Or you're feeling rather dry,
Send a telegram to Teddy,
And you'll get a hot reply.

If there's too much rain in Kansas
Or it's dry in Tennessee,
If a summer cyclone fans us
Or if Towser has a flea,
If your sweetheart should prove fickle,
If you want to know the score,
If you get a punctured nickel,
Drop a line to Theodore.

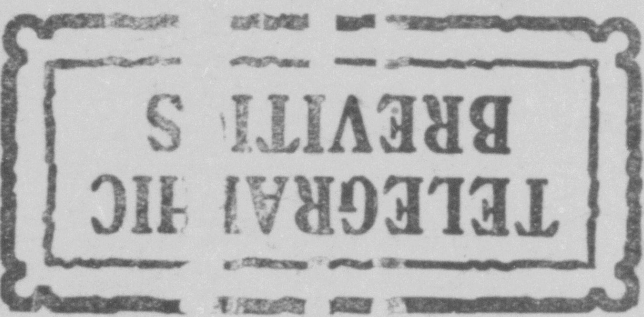

If you need another member
Of the Ananias club,
If you're sunstruck in December
Or you're suffering for grub,
If the railroad rates are higher
Or the beef trust gets too gay,
Ring up Roosevelt on the wire,
And there'll be the deuce to pay.

If the stork don't visit promptly,
If we lose to the Maroons,
If Ben Tillman's full of malice
Or La Follette full of prunes,
If the troops shoot up a city
Or you cannot pay your rent,
Take a lesson from this ditty—
Wire to Roosevelt, president!

—Kansas City Journal.

A. F. Potts, asking the city to pass an ordinance prohibiting habitual drunks and persons under seventeen years of age, from operating automobiles. They suggested also that the ordinance provide for the cancellation of a license to run a machine whenever the driver is convicted of drunkenness or with violating the speed limit. A license for chauffeurs was demanded. A committee was appointed to take up the matter with Mayor Bookwalter and members of the city council.

An effort is being made in the Eleventh district to combine the large field of candidates against George B. Lockwood, but it is not believed that it will be successful, as most of the entries are very friendly to him. It is said that the same forces that tried to defeat Harry Bendell of Huntington for district chairman are starting the talk that it is a case of Lockwood against the field. There are several very strong candidates, and it is anybody's race at this time. The convention will be held at Marion on March 26.

Execution of Laws Depends On the People's Wish.

By Attorney General BONAPARTE.

IN the eastern states any enforcement of federal statutes forbidding conspiracies in restraint of trade or favoritism by common carriers is greeted by a CHORUS OF WAILS as "unsettling business" and breeding or keeping alive panics. In certain western and southwestern states the prosecution of men who have acquired vast tracts of public lands through FRAUD AND PERJURY, in plain violation of law and with enormous profit to "themselves," is fiercely denounced as a "persecution" of "prominent" and "public spirited" citizens. Finally, in southern states attempts to bring to punishment under the laws of the United States forbidding peonage those who virtually ENSLAVE HELPLESS NEGROES AND NO LESS HELPLESS FOREIGNERS provoke a like outcry.

NOW, IN OUR COUNTRY NEITHER THE PRESIDENT NOR ANY ONE ELSE CAN EXECUTE THE LAWS FAITHFULLY OR EXECUTE THEM AT ALL UNLESS THE AMERICAN PEOPLE WISH THEM EXECUTED. IF IT BE TRULY THE PEOPLE'S WISH THAT ANY LAWS OR THAT ALL LAWS SHALL BECOME DEAD LETTERS WHENEVER RICH OR INFLUENTIAL MEN FIND THEIR FAITHFUL EXECUTION A SOURCE OF LOSS OR DANGER TO THEMSELVES, THEN SUCH LAWS CANNOT BE AND WILL NOT BE ENFORCED AGAINST SUCH MEN.

But I, for one, believe firmly that THE PEOPLE HAVE NO SUCH WISH, and I believe further that practically every one else believes about this as I do, so that the very men who raise these MIS-LEADING CLAMORS do not, because they dare not, say plainly what they mean and what they think.

I believe that if they said this so that it could be understood they and every one else as well would learn QUICKLY AND UNMISTAKABLY that the people think and wish nothing of the sort. Americans as a nation think THEIR LAWS ARE MEANT TO BE OBEYED BY ALL ALIKE, by the rich no less than by the poor, by the enlightened no less than by the ignorant.

Geography in City Schools

BY PROF. J. H. SCHOLL

A course of study in Geography outlined for the use of the teachers in the city schools. Teachers should use carefully the purpose and limits of the work for each grade, and make a careful study of methods and reference work that will be of assistance in making the study of Geography interesting and profitable to the students. The course may be of interest to the patrons of the schools.

PURPOSE.

1. To give a definite knowledge of the location and character of certain important places on the surface of the earth. (Practical.)
2. To see that the earth is adapted to be the home of man. (Cultural.)
3. To show the interdependence of men. (Sociological.)
4. To cultivate the powers of observation, memory, reason, and imagination. (Disciplinary.)
5. To show the relation to other school studies. (Correlative.)

INTRODUCTORY GEOGRAPHY.

The purpose of instruction in the first three years is to lead children to observe carefully their surroundings and to acquire certain elementary ideas that will be helpful in their future study. The teaching should be objective and should be kept within the limits of the child's observation and experience. While this work is incidental, it should be given with an understanding of the purpose underlying the course.

First Year—

- Distance—number of squares to school, etc.
- Location—right, left, front and back, above and below.
- Direction—rising and setting of the sun; direction home and to familiar objects.
- Form—sphere, globe, sun, moon, fruit.
- Color—use color chart; color of fruits and objects in room.
- Weather observations—seasons, weather changes, calendar.

Grade 2B—Continue and supplement the work outlined for the first year.

Simple lessons on occupations. Let the children tell what different people whom they know are occupied in doing. Let them tell of the various kinds of buildings they have seen in Rushville and their uses—the court house, the schools, the churches, the depots, the stores, power houses, etc.; of the ways of traveling—interurbans, railroads, bicycles, carriages, automobiles, etc.

Stories of life in cold and warm countries.

Read "September to June" appropriate to the seasons.

Grade 2A—Review and supplement the work of previous grades.

Read "September to June" appropriate to the seasons for grade.

Read Robinson Crusoe to the children and discuss the story.

Ask the children to observe and learn the names of several trees, plants, animals, local products.

Read and study poems appropriate to the seasons.

Grade 3B—Distance—The teaching of distance and direction should produce accuracy of speech and state ment. It ought to develop as much certainty as a mathematical statement. Teach the mile as a unit, and from this starting point develop an appreciation of distances. Develop accurate ideas of minute, a ten-minute period, half an hour, hour, as a unit of thought. Use these units of time as means of developing the larger units of distance—such as ten miles, twenty miles, etc.

Make a plan of the school room, the school yard, the city near the school building, and later the city. Have pupils place on plans furnished them the principal buildings of the city.

Test the pupils on the distance to and direction of different points in the city from their respective school buildings.

Note the distance of shadows at different times of the year.

Have the pupils note the weather each day, and note the temperature.

Teach the stories found in "Seven Little Sisters."

Grade 3A—Teach the stories found in "Each and All."

Continue distance and direction lessons of 3B.

Discuss and illustrate by means of journeys, maps, and mouldings the topics found in Part I of Tarr and McManis's Introductory Geography.

(To be continued.)

KUNG HE! KUNG HE!
KUNG HE FET TOY!

Get Together and Practise on this for the Chinese New Years Saturday

If you chance to be in the Sing Lee Chinese laundry, on West First street, Saturday and one of the celestials in charge says "Kung he fet toy," do not become frightened and think he is calling on some Chinese God to destroy you. He will be merely wishing you a happy new year. The Chinese new year begins Saturday morning at 12 m and according to the Chinese way of reckoning it is the year 4605. If the Chinaman hands you a piece of red paper with the same inscription, as is frequently done, it means the same thing and you should return the salutation. "Kung he, Kung he," which freely translated means, "The same to you."

Word that Democratic House is Coming From Democrats.

When some of the old leading Democrats of Rushville voluntarily come to a fellow and inform him that they are meeting apart from the Hearst bunch, with a hope of saving the old party name from having a yellow can tied to its tail in Rush county, one cannot discredit the story and can readily appreciate why these men who have been branded as "antiquated old fogies" by the younger element holding the reins, should meet and council together with a hope of saving their party from going off in the paths of fads and follies. A few of the Hearst leaders would have the people believe that the old wheel horses are a part of their machinery, and are meeting as a committee for the big harmony meeting to be held soon.

If they are a committee at all, then they desire to be classed as a committee on "discord" not "harmony" with the Yellow Peril movement in Rush county.

The months that passed during Seward's absence from the city began to prove rather eventful for Plank. He was finally elected a member of the Patrons club without serious opposition; he had dined twice with the Kemp Ferralls; he and Major Belwether were seen together at the Calithness dance and in the Calithness box at the opera. Once a respectable newspaper reported him at Tuxedo for the week's end; his name, linked with the clergy, frequently occupied such space under the column headed "Ecclesiastical News" as was devoted to the progress of the new chapel, and many old ladies began to become familiar with his name.

At the right moment the Mortimers featured him between two fashionable bishops at a dinner. Mrs. Vendennung, who adored bishops, immediately remembered him among those asked to her famous annual bal poudre, a celebrated yacht club admitted him to membership, a whole shoal of excellent minor clubs which really needed new members followed suit, and even the rockribbed Lenox, wearied of his own time honored immobility, displayed the preliminary fidgets which boded well for the stolid candidate.

Yes, he was doing well, for that despot beauty, Sylvia Landis, whose capricious perversity had recently astonished those who remembered her in her first season as a sweet, reasonable and unspoiled girl, was always friendly with him. That must be looked upon as important, considering Sylvia's unassailable position and her kinship to the autocratic old lady whose kindly ukase had for generations remained the undisputed law in the social system of Manhattan.

At a ball at the Pages, to which Mrs. Mortimer took him, Plank met Sylvia. Her escort, Ferrall, nodded to him pleasantly. She leaned forward from Ferrall's arm, saying under her breath: "I have saved a dance for you. Please ask me at once. Quick! Do you want me?"

"I—I do," stammered Plank.

Ferrall, suspicious, stepped forward to exchange civilities, then turning to the girl beside him: "See here, Sylvia, you've dragged me all over this house on one pretext or another. Do you want any supper, or don't you? If you don't, it's our dance."

"No, I don't. No, it isn't. Kemp, you annoy me."

"That's a nice thing to say. Is it your delicately inimitable way of giving me my cone?"

"Yes, thank you," nodded Miss Landis coolly. "You may go now."

"You're spotted, that's what's the matter," retorted Ferrall wrathfully. "I thought I was to have this dance. You said—"

"I said 'perhaps,' because I didn't see Mr. Plank coming to claim it. Thank you, Kemp, for finding him."

Her nod and smile took the edge from her malice. Ferrall, who really adored dancing, glared about for anybody to dance with.

Sylvia, standing beside Plank, looked up at him with her confident and friendly smile.

"You don't care to dance, do you? Would you mind if we sat out this dance?"

"If you'd rather," he said, so wistfully that she hesitated; then with a little shrug laid one hand on his arm, and they swung out across the floor together into the scented whirl.

Plank, like many heavy men, danced beautifully, and Sylvia, who still loved dancing with all the ardor of a schoolgirl, permitted a moment or two of keen delight to sweep her dreamily from her purpose. But that purpose must have been a strong one, for she returned to it in a few minutes and, looking up at Plank, said very gently that she cared to dance no more.

Her hand resting lightly on his arm, it did not seem possible that any pressure of hers was directing them to the conservatory, yet he did not know where he was going, and she was familiar with the house, and they soon entered the conservatory, where, in the shadow of various palms, various youths looked up impatiently as they passed and various maidens sat up very straight in their chairs.

Threading their dim way into the farther recesses, they found seats among thickets of forced lilacs overhung by early wistaria. A spring-like odor hung in the air. Somewhere a tiny fountain grew musical in the semidarkness.

"Marion told me you had been asked," she said. "We have been so friendly. You've always asked me to dance whenever we have met, so I thought I'd save you one. Are you flattered, Mr. Plank?"

He said he was, very pleasantly, perfectly undeceived and convinced of her purpose—a purpose never even tacitly admitted between them, and the old loneliness came over him again—not resentment, for he was willing that she should use him. Why not? Others used him, everybody used him, and if they found no use for him they let him alone. Mortimer, Fleetwood, Belwether—all, all had something to exact from him. It was for that he was tolerated. He knew it. He had slowly and unwillingly learned it. His intrusion among these people, of whom he was not one, would be endured only while he might be turned to some account. The hospital used him, the clergy found plenty for him to do for them, the museum had room for other pictures of his. Who among them all had ever sought him without a motive? Who among them all had ever found unselfish pleasure in him? Not one.

He wished she would come to her point, but he dared not lead her to it too brusquely, because her purpose and her point were supposed to be absolutely hidden from his thick and credulous understanding. It had taken him some time to make this clear to himself. Passing from suspicion through chagrin and overwounded feeling to dull certainty that she, too, was using him, harmlessly enough from her standpoint, but how bitterly from his, he alone could know.

The flutter of her fan meant impatience to learn from him what she had come to him to learn and then, satisfied, to leave him alone again amid the peopled solitude of clustered lights.

He wished she would speak. He was tired of the sadness of it all. Whenever in his isolation, in his utter destitution of friendship, he turned guilelessly to meet a new advance, always, sooner or later, the friendly mask was lifted enough for him to divine the cool, fixed gaze of self interest inspecting him through the damask slits.

Sylvia was speaking now, and the plummy fan was under savant control, waving graceful accompaniment to her soft voice, punctuating her sentences at times, at times making an emphasis or outlining a gesture.

It was the familiar sequence—topics that led to themes which adroitly skirted the salient point; returned capriciously, just avoiding it—a subtly charming pattern of words which required so little in reply that his smile and nod were almost enough to keep her aria and his accompaniment afloat.

It began to fascinate him to watch the delicacy of her strategy, the coqueting with her purpose; her naive advance to the very edges of it, the airy retreat, the innocent detour, the elaborate and circuitous return. And at last she drifted into it so naturally that it seemed impossible that fatuous man could have the most primitive suspicion of her premeditation.

And Plank, now recognizing his cue, answered her. "No, I have not heard that he is in town. I stopped to see him the other day, but nobody there knew how soon he intended to return from the country."

"I didn't know he had gone to the country," she said without apparent interest.

And Plank was either too kind to terminate the subject or too anxious to serve his turn and release her, for he went on.

"I thought I told you at Mrs. Ferrall's that Mr. Seward had gone to the country."

"Perhaps you did. No doubt I've forgotten."

"I'm quite sure I did, because I remember saying that he looked very ill, and you said, rather sharply, that he had no business to be ill. Do you remember?"

"Yes," she said slowly. "Is he better?"

"I hope so."

"You hope so," with the controlled emphasis of impatience.

"Yes. Don't you, Miss Landis? When I saw him at his home he was lame—on crutches—and he looked rather ghastly, and all he said was that he expected to leave for the country. I asked him to shoot next year at Black Fells, and he seemed bothered about business and said it might keep him from taking any vacation."

"He spoke about his business?"

"Yes, he—"

"What is the trouble with his business? Is it anything about Amalgamated and Intercounty?"

"I think so."

"Is he worried?"

Plank said deliberately, "I should be if my interests were locked up in Amalgamated Electric."

"Could you tell me why that would worry you?" she asked, smiling persuasively across at him.

"No," he said, "I can't tell you."

"Because I wouldn't understand?"

"Because I myself don't understand."

She thought awhile, brushing the rose velvet of her mouth with the fan's edge, then, looking up confidently: "Mr. Seward is such a boy. I'm so glad he has you to advise him in such matters."

"What matters?" asked Plank bluntly.

"Why, in—financial matters."

"But I don't advise him."

"Why not?"

"Because he hasn't asked me to, Miss Landis."

"He ought to ask you. He must ask you. Don't wait for him, Mr. Plank. He is only a boy in such things."

And, as Plank was silent:

"You will, won't you?"

"Do what—make his business my business without an invitation?" asked Plank so quietly that she flushed with annoyance.

"If you pretend to be his friend, is it not your duty to advise him?" she asked impatiently.

"No; that is for his business associates to do. Friendship comes to grief when it crosses the frontiers of business."

"That is a narrow view to take, Mr. Plank."

"Yes, straight and narrow. The boundaries of friendship are straight and narrow. It is best to keep to the trodden path—best not to walk on the grass or trample the flowers."

"I think you are sacrificing friendship for an epigram," she said, careless of the undertone of contempt in her voice.

"I have never sacrificed friendship," he turned and looked at her pleasantly. "I never made an epigram consciously, and I have never required of a friend more than I had to offer in return. Have you?"

The flush of hot displeasure stained her cheeks.

"Are you really questioning me, Mr. Plank?"

"Yes. You have been questioning me rather seriously, have you not?"

"I did not comprehend your definition of friendship. I did not agree with it. I questioned it, not you. That is all."

Cowper's Home a Museum.

The home for many years of the poet Cowper at Olney, Bucks, in England, has recently undergone a thorough renovation, conducted on reverent lines, at the hands of the trustees in whom it is vested as a museum, says the Pall Mall Gazette. Previously only a part of the building was used, but now all the rooms are reserved for the exhibition of the many interesting relics of the poet that have been presented. The museum is especially rich in manuscripts, early editions of the poems and the personal possessions of Cowper. The exterior of the house has also engaged attention, and now as the result of a careful study of old prints a restoration to the appearance presented in the days of Cowper has been effected.

AMUSEMENTS

The Grand theatre has an exceptionally come bill tonight consisting of the subjects, "Will He Overtake Him," and "The Last Cartridge," taken from war incident in the late Sepoy Rebellion in India, and is one of the best programs ever presented here. Miss Brown will sing the illustrated song.

The bill at the Vandet is full of comic situations from start to finish. "The First Olgar" is the leader and is one of the best comedies seen in this city. It is a story of the young man who became sickened right unto death with his first cigar. Miss Wrenick sings the illustrated song.

"POPPER" THAT MADE GOOD.

Wonderful Device Adopted by a Girls' Leap Year Club.

The "question popper," installed at Follansbee, W. Va., recently by the eight members of the Girls' Leap Year club, has already brought about one marriage and one engagement, says a special to the New York World.

Its great triumph was at the home of Miss Bertha McWithers, where John Williams expected to toast his shins serenely all winter. They were married the day after the "popper" got to work. Two weeks later at the home of Miss Jean Hardy the "popper" got its work in Samuel Richards, who had "steadies" at Mingo Junction and at Wellsburg and Steubenville, O. Both young men are helping the young women to maintain the secret of the invention.

The other six girls are waiting their turn, and they confidently expect to be married within six months. The club refuses many requests from out of town to divulge the "popper" secret.

Entrees For Transcontinental Race.

Denver will contribute a rider in the great transcontinental endurance race for horses, starting from Portland, Ore., and ending in Washington, says the Denver Post. The rider is Charles D. Lancaster, who has made his home in Denver for three years. He bears the reputation of being an excellent cross country rider. He has received the offer of a mount on Sunshine, which will be entered by Colonel N. H. Brown of St. Louis. Mr. Lancaster has ridden Sunshine in a number of cross country tests and thinks he has a good chance of winning the big race. Other horses entered will be Homer Davenport's Arabian, Masoud, and General John B. Castelman's Kentucky saddler, Carolina, which has an enviable record for endurance.

Keeping Off the Texas Wolf.

If you owe us, send us potatoes, corn, cotton seed, "lasses" and a little cash when you get it, says the Cass County (Tex.) Sun, for they might help keep the wolf off.

A Georgia Invitation.

"Way down yander by de rocky hill (Kunneel, will you take a walk?) Dar's somepin' what looks lak' a moon-shine still, But he des too still ter talk!"

"Down by de ol' fiel' whar de rabbit jump An' he old mule bray an' balk Dar's a brown jug hidin' in a bottle stump. (Kunneel, will you take a walk?)"

A CHAT WITH OUIDA.

What the Novelist Told a Physician About Her Novels.

THOUGHT "PUCK" CLEVEREST.

"Under Two Flags" She Deemed Sensational—Said She Never Cared For Applause—Told Doctor Who Visited Her She Declined to Be Poisoned.

The following is an account of an English physician's last talk with Ouida (Mlle. Louise de la Ramee), the British novelist, who died recently at Viareggio, in Italy, says a special cable dispatch to the New York Herald:

A sordid two story house in one of the least interesting streets of perhaps the healthiest but certainly the ugliest town on the shores of the Mediterranean. The door was opened by a slatternly female, and after a brief delay I was ushered into a squalid room on the ground floor and found myself in the presence of Ouida and four unkempt, unwholesome looking dogs.

The great authoress was seated on a low couch between a fairly respectable fire and the door, which, of course, the servant had opened, but had forgotten to close. A shrewd little face peeped up at me from among the blankets in which she was wrapped, while a thin forefinger motioned me imperiously to a chair.

After dodging the unmannerly attentions of the canine attendants I succeeded in closing the door and settled down to business. Ouida absolutely declined either to go to bed or take any prescriptions, asseverating with emphasis that she had no great opinion of the profession and declined to be poisoned.

She was, however, gracious enough to add that it was a pleasure to listen once more to an English voice and begged me to stop and have a chat. Our conversation was as follows, and I am glad I am in a position to publish it without laying myself open to the bugbear of our vocation, the charge of breach of professional etiquette:

Dr. M.—Please do not think it impertinent of me to suggest that the thought of all the pleasure which your books have given to so many thousands of readers must be exceedingly comforting to you in your present ill health.

Ouida—I neither appreciate now nor indeed have ever appreciated the applause of the public. My sole motive for writing always has been the pleasure of seeing myself in print.

Dr. M.—Indeed! Now, I wonder whether you agree with me in placing "Under Two Flags" as the first and "Tricotrin" as the second among your novels?

Ouida—I am not going to say anything against "Tricotrin," but "Under Two Flags" is almost undiluted sensationalism. I think "Puck" is by far the cleverest of my novels.

Dr. M.—I had forgotten "Puck" for the moment. May I ask you why one can detect no traces either of your earlier style or method in "The Messerines?"

Ouida—I do not agree with you. I consider that "The Messerines" bears the strongest family resemblance to "Moths."

Dr. M.—Do you never intend to let us have another book, utilizing the service of an amanuensis?

Ouida—Don't talk of such a thing! Since I lost the sight of my right eye through an accident last year I have given up all thought of literary work, and the idea of employing an amanuensis—(Here the lady became almost inarticulate with wrath.)

Dr. M.—I believe you sold the copyright of your books outright?

Ouida—Yes, like a fool, and I have put thousands into other people's pockets.

Dr. M.—What about your theatrical rights?

Ouida—At one time "Under Two Flags" was being played simultaneously in three London theaters, and I did not get a penny out of it.

The rest of the conversation was, to my mind, rather pathetic.

Ouida—I feel poignant regret not so much for the loss of my health as for my dimmed vision, faded complexion and scanty hair, with memories of the days when horses and carriages were at my disposal, when receptions were daily occurrences and when servants were not "dirty beasts" (sic).

I was finally dismissed with a pungent criticism of this her adopted country, which she begged me not to repeat, and received a hearty invitation to call again unprofessionally a week later.

Now she lies dead, with a little white dog curled beneath her on the pillows.

WHICH STORY DO YOU WANT?

The Daily Republican wishes to ascertain which of the following stories is desired for the next serial to be published after the present story, "The Fighting Chance," is finished. The story receiving the most requests will be printed next and the other stories in order of standing. Send us your preference by card, phone or personal call before February 10th. Following is a list of a few of the stories we can secure for publication in the Republican.

The Mystery

By Stewart Edward White and Samuel Hopkins Adams. To the worth of this story there are two substantial tributes—first, that it was run as a serial by the London Sphere, a publication noted for its discrimination in the selection of serials and which rarely uses an American story; second, that "The Mystery" was one of the "good sellers" of 1907. This is a story of mystery and adventure on new lines. The style is graphic and forceful as the "copy" of a skillful reporter of an important news event. The part of the hero, unfolds gradually until he stands revealed as the rarest combination of whimsical humor and cool courage ever presented, perhaps in fiction. The narrative, which conveys the impression of reality, not fiction, is swift and alluring, holding the interest of the reader as with hooks of steel.

His Courtship

By Helen R. Martin, author of "Tillie: A Menonite Maid." In the main this story is a record of the adventures of a young Doctor of Philosophy, who conspires to play the humble role of hired hand at Mr. Morningstar's farm boarding house that he may have opportunity for serious and scholarly meditations and avoid the blandishments of fascinating young lady boarders. The resulting complications make a story as rich in humor, as provocative of laughter as any that has been written in recent years. The characters are as interesting as one's intimate friends.

The Plow Woman

By Eleanor Gates, author of "The Biography of a Prairie Girl." A story of the winning of the west; of the ways and wiles of the savage Sioux; of brave soldiers and daring frontiersmen; of a stubborn hate coming down from the civil war; of love tender, brave and true. He who reads shall know that a tale of Dakota of thirty years ago may kindle and inspire as much as any story of times remote; that the says of romance are near, not far off. The narrative begins quietly and rises steadily in interest to a climax as absorbing and inspiring as has been presented in any novel or drama, old or new.

Richard the Brazen

By Cyrus Townsend Brady, author of "The Southerner," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc., and Edward Peple, author of "A Broken Rosary," "The Prince Chap," etc. In "Richard the Brazen" we put before the reader a knight errant worthy of the best days of chivalry, though he is of the present, and we find him in the garb of a cowboy. The superb courage with which he rescues from certain death a young woman whom he had never before seen, and the reckless daring with which he risks his reputation in attempt to win this woman under an assumed name, will appeal strongly to every lover of romance and admirer of courage. How Richard prospered in his enterprise under difficulties which would discourage any but the most stout hearted we leave the reader to find out, and a most delightful pastime it will prove.

The King of Diamonds

By Louis Tracy, author of "The Wings of the Morning," "The Pillar of Light," etc. Gripping the reader fast with its tale of the astounding transformation, in one day, of a ragged London waif into the possessor of incalculable wealth, this story by Louis Tracy measures up fully to the standard of this romancer's other popular tales. In the unfolding of the story he depicts not merely the change in the hero's material circumstances, but the interesting development of his character. The stirring adventures in which Philip Anson became embroiled by reason of his suddenly acquired riches, literally sent him from heaven, his loyalty to the girl friend of his childhood and his manly deilement with Mr. Tracy's well known skill

Red Saunders

By Henry Wallace Phillips. This is the famous story of Red Sanders, big Red, tough Red of the plains and mines. We shall follow this expansive man through his days of toughness and stiafulness up to the great day of his life, the day that shall bring the metamorphosis of Red. This trumpeter will not give the story away by indicating how this transformation shall come about—whether through the remorse or repentance of Red, his conviction of sin, his fear of the damnation of the wicked, his yearning for the peace that passeth understanding, or whether it shall be the love of woman that shall bring this giant to his knees and make him as a little child. The trumpeter will only promise that this conversion of Red shall be one of the most interesting and delicious episodes in all fiction, which the reader will enjoy and doubtless remember through all the years of his life.

STUPENDOUS, YES

This Is the Word Used by Old Parliamentarians Regarding New Program.

ALL ENGLAND ON TIP-TOE

Growing Demand For Reforms Leads to Sweeping Proposals on the Part of the Liberal Majority.

Big as the Program Is, Many Are Dissatisfied That It Is Not Farther Reaching.

London, Jan. 30.—Big as is the Liberal program of legislation for the session of parliament which has just opened, and earnest as the government leaders have shown themselves to be in their endeavors to meet the views of all factions, constituting the present radical majority in the house of commons, there is a well-defined feeling of disappointment among the ministerial supporters that the cabinet has not been more definitely radical in its proposals.

The speeches of the cabinet representatives since the last session of parliament has led to the expectation of more definite proposals with regard to the government's Irish policy, old age pensions and education, to mention only a few subjects of reference to which in the king's speech did not satisfy the respective elements especially interested therein.

Rumors from Dublin had forecasted another Irish councils bill, but there has been substituted for this a measure which, if it passes, will only deprive the landlords of their grazing lands in certain sections. Similarly, forecasts with regard to educational and old age pensions proposals promised much more than indicated by the references to these matters in the speech from the throne. There is an inclination to believe that the king used his influence as far as he was able without overstepping the constitutional bounds, to modify the more sweeping proposals with which the cabinet is credited by those usually in their confidence.

Even the whittled program, however, strikes old parliamentarians with astonishment. "Stupendous" was the word frequently heard in the lobbies of parliament applied to this program. Mr. Balfour, leader of the opposition party, in the course of the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne, declared that it could not be carried through without an unprecedentedly violent use of the guillotine, which practically would stifle free debate.

Herbert H. Asquith, chancellor of the exchequer, who in the absence of the premier, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, assumed the leadership in the house of commons, admitted that the dozen measures mentioned in the king's speech constituted a long list. Nevertheless, he added cheerfully, the government not only proposes to carry them, but "a great many others" are necessary to translate the platform professions into the pages of the statute books.

"HOBOS" PROGRAM

James Eads How's Ambitious Plan for the Unemployed.

St. Louis, Jan. 30.—Itinerant unemployed numbering tens of thousands assembled in national convention in St. Louis, will demand of congress an appropriation of $100,000,000 if plans formulated at a meeting at the headquarters of the Brotherhood Welfare association are carried out. Plans for the convention are to be formulated by a committee which is to report Feb. 4.

JAMES EADS HOW.

James Eads How, millionaire philanthropist and founder of the Brotherhood, who delights to style himself a "hobo," was the moving spirit at the preliminary meeting in advocating the assemblage of the unemployed from all parts of the United States to formulate demands upon congress. It was declared that the government could appropriate the $100,000,000 and set the unemployed to digging on the proposed lakes-to-the-gulf deep waterway.

PLEA FOR ACQUITTAL

Harry Thaw Not Mentally Responsible, Urges His Advocate.

New York, Jan. 30.—Martin W. Littleton, chief counsel in the defense of Harry K. Thaw, asked for the acquittal of his client upon the ground of insanity, declaring he could not see how, in the face of the evidence, the jury could render any other verdict. The serious and sincere evidence of the defense tending to establish the insanity of the defendant, Mr. Littleton declared, has been answered only by the sneers and insinuations of District Attorney Jerome. These sneers and insinuations, Thaw's advocate asserted, were not the competent proof that the law required the prosecuting authorities to produce, once the insanity of the accused person was made the issue. He repeatedly urged upon the jury to remember that in a case of this kind the burden of proof rests wholly upon the state to prove the sanity of the defendant beyond all reasonable doubt.

Mr. Littleton warmly defended Evelyn Nesbit Thaw against the attacks of District Attorney Jerome. He said he could not understand what she had done, what great crime she had committed, considered in the light of all she had confessed herself to be, that the prosecutor should transcend all the rules of propriety and decency and attempt to destroy her when in the next breath he was ready to "coddle and hug and vouch for the testimony of such a scoundrel as Abraham H. Hummel—the very vermin of the New York bar."

The address of the defending attorney took up all of yesterday's sessions and District Attorney Jerome is making his reply today. Mr. Littleton's argument was forceful and impressive. He refrained from appealing to the passions of the jury, and devoted himself to a logical consideration of the facts as adduced in evidence. He made no attempt to eulogize Harry Thaw, and he said that he asked for him no more consideration than the average American boy had a right to demand of the average American jury. The speech was crisp with epigrams and short sentences were filled with the pith of logic and the quality of appeal. The juryman followed it with intense interest, and it was generally conceded that Mr. Littleton had left Mr. Jerome a difficult task.

SENTENCED FOR MURDER

Once Honored Illinoisian Must Serve Forty Years.

Carlinville, Ill., Jan. 30.—Peter F. Clark of Girard, Ill., pleaded guilty to the charge of murdering Mrs. Ollie Gibson, March 25, 1907, and was sentenced to serve forty years in the penitentiary. Clark was at one time leader in the choir of the Christian Science church at Girard and a deputy grand master in Masonry, but was expelled from the church and from the order upon charges of immorality. Mrs. Gibson was a member of the choir and her husband secured a divorce at the same term of court at which Mrs. Clark got a divorce from her husband. Clark was once prominent in politics.

Unprecedented Action.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The need of an American merchant marine as an auxiliary to the navy formed the principal topic of discussion in the house during the consideration of the urgent deficiency appropriation bill. The senate was entertained by a series of animated comments on the method adopted by Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou in placing before the senate his reply to the resolution calling for information relative to the operations of the treasury department in connection with the financial disturbance. The secretary had had the introductory part of his reply printed and copies of the pamphlet were on the desks of all senators, which was declared by Democratic senators to be without precedent. The senate devoted considerable time to passing minor bills on the calendar.

BANK GAVE UP

New Amsterdam National Willing to Accept a Receiver.

New York, Jan. 30.—The New Amsterdam National bank, capitalized at $1,000,000 and situated at the corner of Broadway and Thirty-Ninth street, was closed by order of the comptroller of the currency last night, and National Bank Examiner Charles A. Hanna was placed in charge. The institution's liabilities are placed at $4,482,016, of which $2,065,272.49 are due depositors. The bank's officers assert that not only will every depositor be paid in full, but the stockholders will receive a substantial dividend.

The New Amsterdam National was formerly one of the chief links in the chain of banks established by Charles W. Morse. About a year ago the New Amsterdam National underwent a reorganization because of a falling off in its business, and Frank W. Kinsman, jr., was elected president. Every effort was made to rehabilitate the institution. The recent panic was not without its effect, though the bank weathered the storm and succeeded in reducing its clearing house certificates from $1,705,000 to $300,000.

The placing of the Bank of North America, considered as the chief bank of the Morse institutions, in the hands of the comptroller of the currency, brought out rumors as to the New Amsterdam National, according to President Kinsman, and he acquainted Comptroller of the Currency Ridgeley with the situation and requested him to take charge of the institution for the best interests of the depositors and stockholders alike.

Another Bank Gives Up.

New York, Jan. 30.—The Mechanics and Traders bank did not open its doors this morning. This decision was reached at a meeting of the board of directors which closed at midnight last night. In a statement issued after the meeting, the directors declared the bank solvent, but the state of the cash resources made it appear inadvisable for the bank to continue business. The bank is a state institution capitalized at $2,000,000, and previous to the panic last fall carried deposits amounting to more than $20,000,000, but this amount has since been largely reduced. It also was one of the Morse-Thomas chain of banks.

Here's Where the Fun Comes In

Jack Knecht called on a girl last night. He often does, but does not meet with the embarrassing situation every time which confronted him last night. Several of his friends, thinking they would make the evening all the more interesting for him, sent a small boy to the girl's home with a package for Jack. The package contained a night shirt and they sent it to him on the strength of a story which appeared in these columns recently. The naughty boys ought to be arrested.

"Give me a ticket, please," said a young matron in the Big Four ticket office yesterday morning. In her arms she held a young baby and she struggled to reach her purse to get the money for the agent, without laying the baby down in the dust and cinder covered seats in the waiting room. The effort was a fruitless one and Dr. Mahin, superintendent of the electric light and water plant—a fatherly soul—seeing the predicament the lady was in hurried to her rescue. Taking the baby in his arms, he began to toss it up and down when the little one sent up a heart rending yell. Doc began to unwrap the clothing about its head and was probably going to tickle it under the chin to quiet it. After removing several garments he was astonished to find that he had been holding the baby upside down and when he removed the clothing expecting to find a little, round, red face, was two little tootsie - wootsies. It required the mother to right matters and she gave Doc a look of contempt which was the only thing he received for his pains.
